

Stringing Beads: Making a Beautiful Life Moment by Moment

My journey began when I was a child and I was repeatedly attacked by a demon. As a young adult I wanted to learn more about my supernatural experiences. I began journaling my dreams and I saw a pattern emerge. What I was dreaming about days, weeks, or years before was happening in my waking life. My encounter with my twin soul at the age of twenty-four would forever change me. When my eyes met his eyes I felt Eternity open up. I wanted to know what was this consciousness behind this awareness. I began my esoteric studies and found in religious text answers to what I have experienced throughout my life. I had my kundalini awakening at the age of thirty-two. This was due to a psychological crisis when my marriage was falling apart. I also contribute my yearning for God and years of yoga to my awakening. I began blogging three years after my awakening. After twenty years of journaling my dreams, insights, and encounters with other beings; I finally saw the meaning they had for me. I finally had gained the confidence to publicly share my journals. Now I am thirty-eight and have strung together all of my life experiences and found they do serve a higher purpose. Gods abode is within every human heart. All one needs to do is yearn for God. God does speak through dreams. God also does reveal Himself to the devote Seeker. One must die to ego for God to reveal His secret.
